

Who Do I Send It To?

There are a lot more options (smarter options!) than just shooting your resume off to dozen of jobs via Job Boards. Let's take a look at where else you can look to get a great job.

- Firstly, before anyone else, send it to your referees.
- Secondly, write all your skills down and find jobs that require those skills
- Search all the Job Boards
- Seek – set up an account, save your resume on it, set up an automated Job Mail. Make your details viewable. We need to be able to find you.
- Linked In – Post your status as “Open to new opportunities”. If unemployed, carefully word your title to seeking new career opportunities. Message everyone to let them know too.
- Don't just rely on Job Boards!
- Approach local companies, competitors that can use your knowledge
- Who else can I send my resume to?
- Who is connected to them?
- Remember, the perfect candidate doesn't exist so don't count yourself out if you read an ad and you don't fit all the criteria DRAW THEM A MAP
